Leon Black, a billionaire financier, is accused in a new lawsuit of brutally beating and raping a 16-year-old girl with mosaic down syndrome, a rare genetic disorder, at Jeffrey Epstein's estate in 2002.

The Miami Herald—which famously re-opened the probe of Epstein's sexual abuse in 2018—reported on Tuesday that a Jane Doe lawsuit had been filed in Manhattan federal court by an unnamed woman in her late 30s. Doe claims Epstein

But Jane Doe’s lawsuit isn’t lacking in details and context. She claims she had been recruited to Epstein’s trafficking ring by a cheerleading coach (identified by the pseudonym “Elizabeth”) whom she trusted. She says Elizabeth would accompany her to affluent parties and Epstein’s estates, where she was then abused by other men—including Epstein, himself.

The lawsuit claims that before the alleged rape by Black, Maxwell and Epstein had been instructed her—again, a teenager with the development of a 12-year-old—on how to sexually arouse Epstein and awarded her “happy claps” when he was satisfied. Eventually, she says she was “shipped out” to Palm Beach and the U.S. Virgin Islands and missed bulk of her junior year of high school.

Doe’s lawyer said she’s bringing the case now, so many years later, because New York State’s
